Dear Linda,

I was an early purchaser of your book "Ready, Set, Succeed!" which I found to be very easy to read and just as easy to understand. For quick reference, it resides on the bookshelf that is within an arm's reach of my desk.

Since I found the book to be so useful I was curious to see if and how the CD edition of the book would be different from the book. The CD duplicates the ease of reading the book with an easy to listen to version of the book. To me this is a reflection of your knowledge and experience with successful projects that triumph over business as usual. Your smooth delivery on the CD allows complete concentration on the subject as compared to some others I have listened to where the author/reader's use of stilted wording and awkward pauses that have you concentrating words instead of the message.

I suggest that a companion CD be kept in a person's car, because you never know when an idea for a new project might occur or when you will have an idea concerning a current project. This will probably happen when you are away from the office so it would be nice to be able to listen to the CD for a refresher on how to approach the new situation.

Sincerely,
